Euthanasia & Cremation Options

Here at Swanspool Veterinary Clinic we work closely with Lawnhill Crematorium Services. We have a long and trusted relationship with them, and Lawnhill provide our Cremation Services

Dear Client

We understand that the loss of a beloved pet is devastating and that making decisions regarding euthanasia, and choosing between communal cremation, individual cremation and a home burial, is not easy to consider at this difficult time.

To try to help with this we have listed the options available in a single document for you to consider.

Euthanasia Costs

Depending on species, and size of pet, euthanasia costs range from £43.95 to £138.26 for pet animals.

Cremation Options

Individual Cremation

Your pet is cremated individually and their ashes will be returned in a pouch for scattering, or in a wooden casket to keep.

Communal Cremation

Your pet is cremated with other pets and no ashes are returned. The ashes are then scattered within the grounds of Lawnhill Pet Crematorium.

There is no record of where the ashes from specific days are scattered, and, unfortunately, public visits to Lawnhill are not permitted.

Cremation Costs

Cremation cost vary on species and size of pet. The range is between £26.00 for a communal cremation with no ashes returned, to £218.00 for an individual cremation, ashes returned in a casket.

Some owners prefer to make their own arrangements for collection and/or cremation of their pet, please inform a member of our team if you intend to make alternative arrangements.

We hope this will help you make the right decision for yourselves at this difficult time.

Scatter Pouch

Our scatter pouches are currently provided as a blue or purple velvet pouch (unfortunately, we cannot choose in which colour pouch your pet's ashes are returned in)
